

WATER FOR UGANDA

Tim Stewart Architects is proud to partner with Compassion Australia to release children from poverty in Jesus' name.

Together, we have secured accessible sources of clean, safe water for three communities in Uganda, and laid the foundations for four more Compassion centres to receive water in the future. Through our partnership, more than 3600 Compassion assisted children and their families have received the gift of this most precious resource.

Now, mothers and fathers do not have to walk long distances to fetch water, or queue for hours at the town well. Children are better protected from waterborne diseases and able to attend school, learn, grow and develop to fulfil their potential.

This water intervention is part of Compassion's Complementary Interventions program.

Complementary Interventions—Completing Compassion's core programs

Compassion seeks to address all the obstacles that can hinder and impede the healthy development of children. From providing clean water to emergency relief, income-generation training and many others, Compassion's Complementary Interventions tackle some of these additional concerns and provide solutions that enhance, improve and complement their core programs.
